Public sector leaders are currently weighing up heart-wrenching decisions to slash public services. Worth shows that these dilemmas can be avoided without complex change programs, expensive IT projects, or extended training courses. Originally published in 1979, this book reports on a 3 year action research programme (The New Communities Project) which aimed in increase working-class participation in adult education. Basing their argument on the work of the Project, the authors contend that adult education must begin with the people themselves, to go on and assist their intellectual, social, psychological, cultural and political growth. In their view, adult education needs to be identified as something more flexible than 'classes', whilst also distinguishing between non-formal education and other kinds of community work or development. Providing different perspectives on the way in which a service relates to a particular area, the book's conclusions have a bearing on both practice and training in a variety of areas concerned with social intervention. Complaint regarding failure in dealing promptly over refunding a deposit in respect of private street works. Planning Enforcement, 2nd edition covers everything you need to know about the law on development carried out without planning permission or in breach of conditions on a planning permission. The second edition has been completely revised and updated since the previous edition in 1996 to include recent case law and legislation, as well as coverage of several new areas including: Breach of planning control; Time limits on enforcement; The decision to enforce; Environmental Impact Assessment; Temporary Stop Notices; Nationally Significant Infrastructure Projects; Community Infrastructure Levy. Richard Harwood is a planning barrister at 39 Essex Street. He was nominated Junior of the Year for Planning and Environmental Law at the 2011 Chamber Bar Awards. Past lives therapist Barbara Ford-Hammond unveils the methods used to connect to your past (and future) lives. With real life participants selected especially for this book, the author unveils their hidden memories of the hereafter. This book will enable you, with a step-by-step approach, to research your memories.
